Legislation enacted in 1997, Senate Bill 163 (Chapter 795, Statutes of 1997), allowed California counties to participate in a five-year statewide pilot project, known as "Wraparound", under the direction of the California Department of Social Services (CDSS). Using the Wraparound planning process, counties use State foster care funds in a flexible manner to provide eligible children with family-based service alternatives to group home care. The pilot was scheduled to end October 2003. The purpose of this letter is to notify counties that effective July 1, 2001, the end date for the Wraparound Pilot has been repealed. All other activities and standards related to the Wraparound Program remain intact.
